The Church of Sant’Alessandro is dated back to 1564. It was rebuilt at the beginning of the XVII century and restored following the renovation of the Farmstead beside, which occurred in the past century. On the opposite side of Sant’Alessandro Square runs Leonardo da Vinci Road, where, underneath, flows the Molgorana creek. Walking along the cycling lane you will reach Segantini Street and the public gardens dedicated to Giuseppe Sala, a Partisan and also the first Mayor of Villasanta after the end of the Second World War (1945). Keeping the right the road leads to Baracca Road and after the rail crossing it ends in via Toti where begins the Park of Valle Lambro. Walking on the road you will see the local Scout headquarters, whose group is one of the oldest in Italy, being born in 1916, and also the CIM (literally “Centro Ippico Monzese”, an important riding school of Monza with international fame). Eventually, you will reach Molino Sesto Giovine, a small area of Villasanta where you can gaze at the River Lambro and get to the railway station of Buttafava, part of the Monza-Lecco-Molteno line (commonly known as “Besanino”). The name “Buttafava” comes from that one of the family which owned the plot around there. On the way back, at the end of Toti Street, the road becomes again a cycling lane built on the Ghiringhella previous moat, which in Daelli Square crosses the Parks cycling lane, a path which joins the Valle Lambro Park with the Cavallera Park. Moreover, in Daelli Square, this route crosses the green and the red ones.
